TALK WITH A DIAMOND MINER.

Something About the Largest Individual Corporation in the World.

Alexander McGregor, a resident of Rondebousch, South Africa, and his daughter, are at the Hotel Renner. Mr. McGregor has been traveling through Canada and the western States and has visited the World's Fair. After going to Washington, Mr. McGregor will sail from New York for Southampton. When he reaches New York he will have traveled 18,000 miles since leaving Rondebousch, on June 21st.

Mr. McGregor is connected with the DeBeers Consolidated Diamond Mines Co., limited. This concern is capitalized for $20,000,000, and he says it is probably the largest individual corporation in the world. The company employs three thousand and white men and between fifteen and twenty thousand native workmen.

He says that the women of the world will purchase about four million karats of diamonds annually, and the company endeavors to limit its production to this value. In securing the diamonds a shaft is dug similar to a coal mine. In this shaft chambers are made, from which the earth is excavated and sent to the surface. The earth is first pulverized and then run through a series of sieves until all through the diamonds have been extracted. A load is sixteen cubic feet, and each load contains from 1 1/2 to 1 3/4 karats of diamonds. A karat in the rough is worth about $8. The company now has about 400,000 karats on hand.—Baltimore Sun.

I have never been able to procure any medicine that would relieve me of my rheumatic pains like Chamberlain's Pain Balm. I have also used it for lame back with great success. It is the best liniment I have ever used, and I take pleasure in recommending it to my friends. Mrs. EMILY THORNE, Toledo, Washington. For sale by all dealers.
